We hope to spend many interesting hours in exploring ever new avenue of thought. Mrs. Celestine Beasley is instructor.

Officer Hollingworth was guest speaker in the Assembly Program October 17, at 1:00 P. M. He gave a speech on "Safety on the Highways." Some of the highlights in his speech were:

1. Cars should stop when school buses are loading or unloading children.
2. One should drive 15 miles per hour when children are going to or from school.
3. Reckless driving is when one is driving at a speed which endangers the lives of others.
4. When you are driving, always look out for the other driver as well as yourself.
5. Children should never play in the highways.
6. One should never drive without a permit or learner's permit.
7. One will be given a ticket for speeding if he is driving 76 miles per hour or faster. This is a new law which came out recently.

We, students, enjoyed the speech by Officer Hollingworth.

A Pre-Halolwe'en Dance will be given in the gym Saturday night, October 27.

The P. E. boys have started practicing basketball. Twenty-five boys have signed up for the team.

Recently Celestine Chambers, the president of the N. H. A. was a judge at the Campbell County Fair.

We close with this thought:
"Courage is fear holding on just a bit longer."

WOMANS' CLUB TO MEET THURSDAY, NOV. 1

The Appomattox Womans' Club will hold its next meeting on Thursday, November 1, at 3:15 P. M., in the Appomattox Elementary School At this time the guest speaker will be Dr. Ullin W. Leavell, Professor of Education, University of Virginia. Dr. Leavell has been Director of the McGuffey Reading Clinic at the University since 1946. He is an author of a number of books, including textbooks for elementary and high school. He is also a lecturer of note. The public is invited to hear Dr. Leavell.

Hostesses for the day will be Mrs. Joel W. Flood, Mrs. Harry Davis, Mrs. W. E. Ferrell, Mrs. Malcolm Booker, Mrs. John Crafton and Mrs. Shafter Drinkard.

Homemakers Items

For economy's sake, now is the time to compare egg sizes and prices before you buy.

VPI nutritionists say you may find it pays to pick up a carton marked small or medium.

A large seasonal supply of small and medium eggs has put them into the thrift spotlight. When compared by weight, they frequently offer real savings over large eggs. Their size has no effect on internal quality.

To compare egg sizes and prices, remember that U. S. Standards set the minimum weight for large eggs at 24 ounces per dozen, 21 ounces per dozen for medium eggs, and 18 ounces per dozen for small eggs. If the price spread between sizes is more than 10 cents a dozen, you can buy more weight for your money in the smaller sizes.

Homemakers who use the smaller eggs in cooking may find it necessary to adjust some of their recipes. Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Garrett Friday.

Mrs. Estelle Franklin, of Appomattox; Mr. and Mrs. W. D. McPadden, of Roanoke; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Sterman and daughter, Bonnie Joe, of Salina, Kansas, visited Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Garrett Friday.

To do this, simply increase the number of eggs by this general rule: use seven small eggs or six medium eggs to get the same weight as five large eggs. If recipes call for eggs by the cupful, the size of the individual egg makes no difference.

In dishes such as omelets or scrambled eggs, use as many as you think the family will eat. Often a small or medium size egg will fit a child's appetite better than a large egg.

A piece of dried orange rind placed in the cookie jar will give cookies a slight, but delicious, orange flavor, advise VPI nutritionists. To give cookies a nut-like flavor, try adding some uncooked oatmeal which has been toasted to a delicate brown.
